Action Items from Minutes
Rigby and Rauch reviewed the action items tracker and highlighted progress across several ongoing projects. Board members were encouraged to continue monitoring items within their areas of responsibility and provide updates where required.

Finance: YTD 2025-2026 report
Rauch presented an update on WFDF's financial position and current budget performance. It was reported that sponsorship and event revenues continue to perform strongly and are currently ahead of budget projections. Rauch noted that approximately 70% of projected income is aligned with normal accounting timing and recognition procedures and that the final financial position will become clearer as event-related revenues are realized throughout the year.

The updates to the 2026 budget were reviewed by the Board, including adjustments on the expense side, particularly travel costs reflecting increased international travel expenses, and higher staffing costs to support organizational growth. The Board discussed the overall financial outlook, noting that event management revenues remain an important factor in the federation's financial performance. The updated budget for 2026 was supported by the Board.

A motion was made by Sheather to approve the Revised Monthly Budget 2026, seconded by Tisson. The motion was approved unanimously.

Events Team Report
Rauch provided an update on the upcoming championships and event planning activities. Negotiations for several 2027 event contracts are ongoing and progressing positively. The Board was informed that Canada had been selected as the host of the WFDF 2028 World Junior Ultimate Championships.

Šimenc is working on Disc Golf activities, with several projects currently requiring concentrated attention from the Events Team. At the same time, Portwine is taking care of invoicing and financial stuff.

Tisson inquired about the current branding uniform requirements for the WTDGC and financial constraints for athletes that follow this decision. Sheather provided an update and agreed that due to budget considerations and the ongoing transition period, flexibility will be maintained during implementation, allowing alternative approaches where appropriate. Rauch thanked the Disc Golf Committee for its cooperation and willingness to work through practical solutions during the transition.

The importance of reviewing event bulletins and guidance documents to ensure consistency with current policies and branding requirements was noted.

Brand Refresh - Update on implementation

Rigby presented an update on the implementation of the WFDF Brand Refresh. He explained that the initiative is intended to modernize and simplify the federation's visual identity while maintaining its existing name and core branding. The refresh introduces a more consistent design approach, including updated branding guidelines, secondary colours to support different disciplines and content categories, and standardized use of templates and communication materials.

An update was provided on event branding, with Local Organizing Committees retaining their individual event logos while adopting a consistent WFDF visual framework. Social media platforms have already begun transitioning to the new style, resulting in a more modern and unified appearance.

Rigby further reported on planned website developments. The redesigned website will place greater emphasis on the sport itself, highlighting news, events, rankings, disciplines, and development activities, while maintaining a separate section “Inside WFDF” dedicated to institutional information such as governance documents, committees, commissions, and Board materials. The objective is to create a clearer distinction between WFDF’s role as a sport governing body and its organizational functions.

Boliak presented the implementation plan, which has been divided into three phases. The first phase focuses on internal documentation and administrative materials and is expected to be completed by the end of June. Subsequent phases will extend the new branding to National Federations, educational and development resources, external communications, and the website, with full implementation targeted by the end of September 2026. Board members were encouraged to review the implementation materials and provide feedback.

Omuseni asked whether standardized templates would also be developed for commission minutes and related documents. Rigby confirmed that templates would be provided to ensure consistency across all WFDF bodies.

Rauch welcomed the progress made to date, noting that the refresh is intended to be an incremental process that presents WFDF in a more modern, vibrant, and accessible manner while maintaining continuity with the federation's existing identity.

Commercial Development Activities

Rigby presented an update on the development of WFDF's commercial programme, aimed at diversifying the federation's revenue streams and reducing long-term reliance on event income. He reported that and that the Proposition Lab had been engaged to support sponsorship prospecting and structured outreach activities, with ExCom approval..

Rigby outlined a three-stage approach focusing on short-term opportunities around upcoming events, medium-term partnerships for 2027, and the development of long-term relationships with major international brands. He noted that, alongside sponsor outreach, WFDF must continue strengthening its commercial offering through audience development, digital engagement, and improved promotion of its events and activities.

Maehr welcomed the initiative and emphasized the importance of establishing clear principles for commercial partnerships that align with WFDF's values. He also requested further clarity regarding the long-term objectives of the programme.

Rigby responded that additional commercial income would support the federation's development activities and future growth, and agreed that partnerships involving potentially sensitive categories should be reviewed by the Executive Committee and, where appropriate, the Board.

McLeod highlighted the potential role of local tourism authorities and destination partners in supporting WFDF events and generating additional opportunities for commercial cooperation. Rigby agreed that these relationships should be further explored.

Bautista asked whether a more structured event calendar could improve WFDF's attractiveness to sponsors. Rigby replied that the current priority is to better package and promote the federation's existing portfolio of events while continuing to build a sustainable commercial programme.

Annual Congress Improvements

Richardson presented proposed improvements to the organization and delivery of the WFDF Congress. He explained that many of the proposed changes formalize practices that have already been implemented informally and are intended to strengthen governance, improve transparency, and provide greater clarity for participants.

The proposal includes simplifying and standardizing reporting requirements for committees, commissions, and other WFDF bodies to ensure that reports are more clearly aligned with the strategic plan and easier for members to review. Richardson noted that the objective is to make reporting more focused and relevant both for Board members and for the membership while improving the overall Congress experience and creating greater opportunities for interaction and engagement.

The Board welcomed the proposed improvements and supported continued efforts to streamline Congress processes and strengthen governance practices.

Proposal: Improving the Organization of Board/ExCo Meetings

Boliak presented a proposal to standardize the organization and administration of Board and Executive Committee meetings. She explained that the proposal seeks to establish greater consistency regarding meeting preparation, submission deadlines, attendance procedures, reporting requirements, and document management. The Board was informed that several measures are already underway, including standardized templates, tracking systems for meeting materials, attendance monitoring, and refined proxy procedures. Boliak noted that practical experience has demonstrated the need for more clearly documented processes to ensure consistency and improve efficiency.

The proposal also introduces regular written reporting from committees and commissions that do not normally participate in Board meetings, allowing the Board to remain informed about activities across the organization while strengthening accountability and transparency.

Board members expressed support for the initiative and welcomed efforts to formalize and improve existing procedures.

WFDF 3.0 and Organizational Foundations

Richardson presented an update on the WFDF 3.0 and Organizational Foundations project, which focuses on improving internal systems, knowledge management, and operational efficiency across the federation.

The initiative includes the development of standard operating procedures, improved document management practices, greater use of centralized digital systems, and the introduction of role-based email accounts and communication tools to facilitate smoother transitions when volunteers, committee members, or Board members change roles. Richardson noted that these measures are intended to preserve institutional knowledge, reduce administrative burdens, and improve continuity across the organization.

He further explained that efforts are underway to centralize resources and documentation through shared platforms, making information more accessible. New branding and communication standards will also be incorporated into these systems to ensure greater consistency throughout the organization.

Richardson acknowledged the support of Board members and commission chairs in implementing the improvements and emphasized that the overall objective is to allow volunteers and staff to focus more effectively on strategic and developmental priorities rather than administrative tasks.

The Board welcomed the update and expressed support for the continued implementation of the Organizational Foundations initiative.

Disciplines Review Project

Rigby presented a proposal to conduct a structured review of all WFDF disciplines as part of the federation's broader strategic planning process. He explained that WFDF supports a diverse range of disciplines that differ significantly in maturity, participation levels, visibility, and commercial development. The purpose of the review is not to prioritize or deprioritize any discipline, but rather to establish a consistent framework for assessing the current status, challenges, opportunities, and future development needs of each sport.

Rigby noted that the review would provide a common basis for strategic discussions and help the Board better understand the position of each discipline within the federation. The project aims to identify participation trends, geographic growth areas, event structures, development needs, and indicators of success over the next five years. The outcomes will contribute to a broader strategic planning exercise scheduled for later in 2026.

Particular emphasis was placed on ensuring that the review is driven by the Disc Sport Committees themselves. Each committee will be asked to prepare a standardized assessment of its discipline, allowing those most familiar with the sport to identify key challenges, opportunities, and priorities.

McLeod welcomed the initiative and noted that the review could provide valuable guidance when evaluating opportunities to participate in multi-sport events. He observed that different disciplines may be better suited to different types of events and that a clearer understanding of each discipline's characteristics would support future decision-making.

Sheather sought clarification regarding the scope of the review, particularly for Disc Golf, where participation and development extend well beyond WFDF activities. Rauch responded that the primary focus should be on WFDF's role within each discipline and how the federation can best support future growth. Using Disc Golf as an example, he noted the importance of understanding WFDF's relationship with the PDGA, evaluating existing activities such as the World Team Disc Golf Championships, and identifying opportunities for future collaboration and development.

Rigby emphasized that the first phase should focus on gathering available information, assessing participation and growth trends, identifying key challenges, and highlighting areas where further data collection may be required.

Membership and Development Report
Richardson presented an update on membership and development activities, reporting continued progress across several strategic initiatives. He highlighted the successful approval of Burkina Faso as a new WFDF member and the transition to a new national federation structure in Nigeria, bringing WFDF membership to 127 National Federations.

Richardson noted that federation compliance and governance remain ongoing challenges, as member federations operate at different stages of organizational development and require varying levels of support. Efforts continue to strengthen engagement, improve compliance, and provide tailored assistance to member federations.

A significant focus of the report was the continued expansion of the WFDF Academy. Richardson reported growth in participation following the integration of Ultimate Rules Accreditation participants into the Academy platform. As a result, the number of users increased dramatically, creating new opportunities to deliver educational resources, development content, and communication directly to athletes, coaches, and volunteers.

Richardson thanked Disc Committees Chairs and other contributors for their support in developing educational materials and integrating programmes across disciplines. He also highlighted the recent partnership with ICOACHKIDS, which has enabled the addition of more than twenty self-study courses focused on youth development.

Richardson reported that work is underway on a new membership hub that will serve as a central platform for communication, resource sharing, and engagement with National Federations. Rauch commended the progress of the WFDF Academy initiative and welcomed the successful resolution of the long-standing membership situation in Nigeria.

Richardson presented the nomination of Langa Nindi from Zimbabwe for appointment to the Development Commission within the CV provided in the Briefing Book.

A motion was made by Tisson to approve the appointment of Langa Nindi as a member of the Development Commission, seconded by Bulos. The motion was approved unanimously.

Richardson presented the nomination of Aber Gadelrab from Morocco for appointment to the Nominating Committee.

A motion was made by Maehr to approve the appointment of Aber Gadelrab as a member of the Nominating Committee, seconded by Nakasi. The motion was approved unanimously.

Richardson presented a proposal for WFDF to sign the United Against Online Abuse Charter. He explained that the initiative aligns with WFDF's safeguarding objectives and would provide access to resources and support without creating significant administrative obligations or financial costs for the federation. The proposal was welcomed as an opportunity to strengthen WFDF's safeguarding efforts and public commitment to a safe sporting environment.

A motion was made by Bautista to approve the signing of the United Against Online Abuse Charter, seconded by Maehr. The motion was approved unanimously.

International Activities Report

Tomasini presented an update on WFDF's international relations activities and ongoing efforts to strengthen recognition within the Olympic and multi-sport movement. He reported that a key strategic objective remains supporting the recognition of National Federations by their respective National Olympic Committees through closer cooperation with Continental Associations of NOCs and regional sports organizations.

Updates were provided in regards to discussions with ODESUR, ACODEPA, the Islamic Solidarity Sports Association (ISSA), the Association of National Olympic Committees of Africa (ANOCA), and the Oceania National Olympic Committees (ONOC). Tomasini explained that these relationships are intended to facilitate recognition processes for WFDF member federations and strengthen the federation's position within the international sports landscape.

He reported ongoing efforts to advance recognition opportunities through the Islamic Solidarity Sports Association, noting that membership within the organization could significantly support recognition efforts across a large number of countries. Discussions are also underway with stakeholders connected to the Southeast Asian Games, where opportunities may exist to strengthen the visibility of flying disc sports within the region.

Tomasini further reported on contacts with the African Olympic Foundation and developments relating to potential future Wheelchair Ultimate events. Discussions have also continued with the International Mediterranean Games Committee, with efforts focused on securing formal recognition and strengthening relationships with National Olympic Committees throughout the Mediterranean region.

Rauch thanked Tomasini for his ongoing work. The Board welcomed the report and expressed support for the continued international relations strategy.

Anti-Doping Report
Beiglböck presented the Anti-Doping Report and informed the Board that the proposed updates to the WFDF Transgender and Differences of Sex Development Athlete Policy would not be presented for approval at this meeting due to several minor revisions still being finalized.

Beiglböck reported on recent IOC developments concerning eligibility criteria for women's competition and noted that the proposed WFDF policy revisions are not related to these changes. He emphasized that WFDF's current approach remains unchanged and that no substantive modifications to athlete eligibility requirements are being proposed.

Rauch confirmed that the revised document primarily addresses language clarification, alignment with current terminology, and correction of minor inconsistencies. He stressed that there are no significant changes to the existing policy framework.

Tisson expressed concern regarding the timing of the policy update ahead of major events and emphasized the importance of clearly communicating to athletes that no eligibility rules are changing as a result of the IOC's recent announcements. Board members agreed that any communication regarding the revised policy should explicitly clarify that the update is administrative in nature and does not alter current eligibility requirements.

The Board agreed that the revised policy should be finalized and circulated for approval at a future meeting or, if necessary, through an online Board vote prior to the start of the major event season.

Athletes' Commission Report

Tisson presented the Athletes' Commission Report. She highlighted feedback received from members of the Disc Golf athlete group regarding the pool draw structure for World Championships and potential alignment between the WTDGC and The World Games cycle. Sheather confirmed that the matters raised had already been discussed by the Disc Golf Committee and suggested discussing these directly with the athlete representatives. Tisson agreed to connect the relevant commission members with the committee for further discussion.

Tisson also reported progress on the upcoming Athletes' Commission elections and thanked Richardson for his support in organizing the nomination and election process. She noted that the Commission is currently considering priorities for future budget planning but that the final direction will depend on the composition of the newly elected Commission.

Rauch welcomed the increased engagement within the Athletes' Commission and encouraged continued efforts to strengthen athlete participation.

Spirit of the Game Commission Report

Maehr presented the Spirit of the Game Commission Report. He reported that the Commission has resumed a regular meeting schedule using multiple sessions across different time zones to improve participation from members worldwide. All Spirit Directors for 2026 events have been appointed. The Commission is currently preparing updated materials for Spirit Captain meetings and supporting implementation at upcoming events.

Maehr provided an update on Spirit of the Game Day activities, including a series of international webinars and discussions focused on the broader role of Spirit beyond competition. He thanked contributors for their work in organizing the programme and creating content for future educational use.

The Commission continues to develop a clearer definition of Spirit of the Game and its relationship to concepts such as sportsmanship and fair play. Draft materials have been circulated for feedback and further revisions are planned before presentation to the Board. Additional work is underway to update training materials, improve the Spirit Scoring Guide, and adapt educational resources for use within the WFDF Academy.

Maehr also reported progress on translation initiatives and suggested that WFDF consider a more coordinated approach to translation services across the federation.
Rauch noted the challenges associated with maintaining multilingual resources and suggested further discussions regarding practical approaches to translation and document management.

Communication and Social Media Report
Rigby presented the Communication and Social Media Report on behalf of Naya. He reported that WFDF has increased its focus on video content and expanded activity on platforms including TikTok, LinkedIn, and selected Chinese social media channels.

The communications team continues to monitor the balance between event-related and non-event content while ensuring that all flying disc disciplines receive appropriate visibility. Current content output remains approximately evenly split between event and non-event activities, although event coverage is expected to increase during the upcoming championship season.

Rigby reported that social media engagement has increased by approximately 23% compared to the previous reporting period, reflecting the positive impact of recent communication initiatives.

Discussion focused on opportunities to increase engagement from participating teams and athletes ahead of major events. Tisson suggested creating content that highlights teams across all competitive levels, noting that developing and lower-seeded teams are often highly motivated to share content featuring their athletes and programmes.

Tisson also proposed providing guidance and educational resources for youth team social media representatives. Rigby welcomed the suggestion and indicated that future resources could potentially be developed through the WFDF Academy.

Broadcasting Report

Rockwood presented the Broadcasting Report and reported continued progress in expanding media distribution opportunities for WFDF events. WFDF had secured broadcast coverage of the World Ultimate Club Championships in mainland China, including Mandarin-language commentary, generating additional revenue for the federation. Discussions regarding further broadcast opportunities in Japan and Colombia remain ongoing.

Rockwood also reported positive projections for media revenue from Ultiworld, with expected royalty income increasing compared to the previous year.

In preparation for upcoming championships, Rockwood, Rigby, Naya, and event partners have been working to better integrate broadcast production, commentary teams, and social media activities. Particular emphasis is being placed on generating event content before and during competitions and leveraging the reach of participating teams and commentators to expand audience engagement.

GEDI Commission Report

Omuseni presented the GEDI Commission Report and reported that the Commission had met twice since the previous Board meeting. Work continues on the development of two key policies, with the Commission progressing according to the approved timeline. The policy development process has completed its initial phases and is approaching the final drafting stage before submission to the Board for review. Omuseni highlighted ongoing collaboration with the Spirit of the Game Commission, including a joint initiative supporting International Spirit of the Game Day activities. Commission members have also contributed to the review of educational content within the WFDF Academy.

She reported that the Commission continues to monitor key performance indicators related to policy development, inter-commission collaboration, and educational support. While progress remains on schedule, participation levels among some Commission members continue to present challenges. The Commission will review member engagement and consider future membership adjustments as appropriate.

Omuseni also informed the Board that Karina Woldt had stepped down from the Commission due to workload commitments and that recruitment of a replacement member was underway.

Ochoro highlighted progress in regional events, communication initiatives, and efforts to strengthen the implementation of the Memorandum of Understanding between WFDF and the International School Sport Federation. He also reported ongoing discussions with the PDGA regarding support for Disc Golf development activities in Africa.

A key focus of the programme is increasing access to WFDF Academy resources at the local level. Ochoro noted that multilingual communication remains a significant challenge across Africa due to the continent's linguistic diversity and requested guidance regarding communication tools and translation support.

Rauch advised that budget discussions related to the development programme should continue with Richardson and emphasized the growing availability of digital translation tools and multilingual communication platforms that could help improve accessibility across member federations.

AFDF Report

Bautista reported that AFDF had formally selected Hong Kong as the location for its headquarters and is working through the legal and financial requirements necessary for incorporation.

He provided an update on efforts to secure inclusion of flying disc sports in future regional multi-sport events, including the Southeast Asian Games and Asian Beach Games. Bautista reported ongoing cooperation with member federations, regional sports authorities, and local organizing partners to advance these opportunities.

He also highlighted challenges affecting event planning across the region, including rising travel costs and broader geopolitical factors, which have resulted in some events being postponed to 2027. Despite these challenges, preparations continue for the Asian Disc Golf Open in China and a combined Guts and Dodge Disc development event planned for 2027.

EFDF Report

Hermand reported that EFDF had successfully finalized its agreement with IFDA, concluding a process that had required significant effort and resources over the previous two years.

With that matter resolved, EFDF intends to focus on future strategic priorities, including discussions regarding a memorandum of understanding and improved coordination between WFDF and the Continental Associations. Hermand noted that these discussions may help clarify roles, responsibilities, and future cooperation mechanisms.

Rauch welcomed the update and agreed that further discussions on Continental Association relations should be scheduled in the coming months.
